Pamela Jorden, 30, painter

On her work: Graphic spaces collide with more pictorial or painterly spaces. I use Letraset to combine drawing and painting with language and design into chaotic spaces. inspirations: Juan Usle, a New York painter from Spain. on living with her art: I'll bring works in progress home when I want to spend more time thinking about them, but mostly they stay at my studio. on decorating: I really love my couch. I like to have color in my house. I'm interested in simple designs and patterns. favorite possession: My walls.
